It was helping a friend, much older, making the assembly of electronics for a course by mail, that Jorge Dias decided: "When I grow up I am going to be an engineer and I do electronics." He was only seven years old.

Read the full article, published in "Expresso" here.